STRIKING MINERS TO FACE CIRCUIT COURT

Men Invading Pits are Charged With Riot and Conspiracy in Indictments.

BRAZIL, Sept. 3.—Eighty striking miners of Clay, Vigo and Vermillion counties charged with riot and conspiracy for their participation in a raid on the wagon mines near Stanton, June 14, and forced the operators to close down their mines, which they were operating in defiance of the strike. The mob visited several small wagon mines and at the Jones Bros. mine they confiscated a number of shot guns and rifles which were being used by the men employed there, to protect the property. At another mine they took the supply of oil and poured it into the furnace under the boiler, and at still another, they set fire to all the cars on hand.

Riot and Conspiracy. A grand jury investigation followed which resulted in warrants being issued for 80 strikers, charging them with riot and conspiracy. Twelve of the men reside in Clay county, 57 in Vigo county and the balance in Vermillion county. When the Vigo county miners were brought to the city they were accompanied by several hundred of their fellow miners in automobiles, the crowd congregating about the county jail threatening to storm the jail unless their "buddies" were released.

All the prisoners finally secured their liberty after posting bonds of $1,000 each. The opinion had prevailed that since the strike is settled, the riot cases against the strikers would be dismissed, but it is the intention of the officials to carry the cases to a finish.

To Try Alleged Liquor Law Violators at Warsaw

WARSAW, Ind., Sept. 3.—The September term of the Kosciusko circuit court will convene Monday. The principal case of interest to be tried is that against Earl Denny and Charles Neilans, confined in the county jail, awaiting trial on charges of assault with intent to kill and with violating the liquor laws. The men are alleged to have conducted a moonshine den nine miles southeast of Warsaw. While a raid was being conducted on the place Denny shot Officer Burwell of Warsaw, inflicting a wound for which he was regarded as seriously wounded. Burwell has since recovered.

Double Guards Along Pennsylvania Tracks

WARSAW, Ind., Sept. 3.—Guards along the Pennsylvania railroad in and near Warsaw have been doubled as the result of the appearance of strangers along the right-of-way and the use of flashlights by these persons at night. In addition to bridge guards, track walkers and special agents traveling up and down the Fort Wayne division, the company has placed in service a motor car patrol and these cars continuously operate over a distance of 18 miles each to see that no depredations have been committed by strikers or strikebreakers.

Feeble Minded Youth

Drowns as 35 Look On. FORT WAYNE, Ind., Sept. 3.—Floyd Benjamin Walker, 12 years old, of Kokomo, an inmate of the Indiana school for feeble minded, drowned while bathing in the St. Joe river here. Walker, who had been at the school four years was surrounded by 35 other boys. When attendants on the river bank saw the boy sink they jumped into the river to rescue him, but owing to the muddy condition of the water the body was not recovered for 10 minutes.

While Movers Squabble

CINCINNATI, O., Sept. 3.—Because the owner of a house and a man who contracted to move it disagreed over terms after the business of moving was begun a two-story brick house has stood in the streets of St. Bernard for the last nine months. But now the complaining citizens of the village have been told these differences have been patched up and it is likely that another three months at the most will see the house standing on its intended lot. The mayor of St. Bernard explained the official action in the matter would have been brought with difficulty, as the Safety Director of the former administration issued a permit to move the house, but neglected to specify a time limit.

Lost Her Job When Her Children

Grew Up, So Seeks New Interests

NEW YORK, Sept. 3.—(By I. N. S.)—"There is no end to growth." "There is no excuse for narrow-mindedness and stagnation, because knowledge is within reach of all." "These changing times demand new viewpoints, and the woman of today must keep herself well informed as part of her duty as a citizen."

These are three of the guiding principles of Mrs. A. P. Crawford, of Greensboro, N. C. That she has proved her devotion to these dicta is evidenced by the fact that Mrs. Crawford, although a college graduate and a Vassar student, is, at the age of 71, taking another course—this time in the Summer session of Columbia university.

Any mother will testify that the rearing of six children is pretty much of a life work in itself, but Mrs. Crawford, who is staying at No. 420 W. One Hundred and Nineteenth st., feels that she lost her job when her children grew up and proved themselves able to shift for themselves.

She wanted no time in ruminating over the possibility of the "dangerous age," as did Rose Macaulay's women in her recent novel, but made up her mind that there were still many things going on in the world that would prove interesting study for a woman of 71.

And what do you suppose Mrs. Crawford is delving into? Nothing short of Prof. Montague's course in radical, conservative and reactionary tendencies in present-day morals and lectures in comparative literature. This oldest student of Columbia certainly responds for her sex to Prof. Wilson's search for "forward-looking" folk as she has chosen just about the most modern subjects one could find in the university's abundant curriculum.

The conclusion of the six weeks' course will not find Mrs. Crawford satisfied that she has mastered the fairly convince her that a new social and industrial order is arising out of the struggles of capital and labor. In the nation's gradual and steady progress toward the fulfillment of its democratic ideals, she maintains, social and economic ideas considered chimerical when she was young are becoming commonplace now. This progressive woman has a good word for the seppers. Although she believes that girls do not study so diligently as they once did she is in accord with their striving for freer and broader lives. Mrs. Crawford was a teacher for two years after she had been graduated from the Greensboro College for Women and had spent one year at Vassar, which was then four years old. Her marriage to a Methodist clergyman, bringing with it many home and parish duties, did not interrupt her craving for knowledge. Nor did her occupations at home prevent her from insuring her health by enjoying outdoor life and exercise. Associate with young folk, she also advises those who wish to remain young in spite of their years. Three of her five sons are teachers and two are engaged in business in Winston-Salem, N. C. In Greensboro Mrs. Crawford lives with her daughter. She has two granddaughters, seven and eight, who are doing their best, by assiduous study, to "keep up with grand-mother."
